Notes

1. We've added BricsCAD "All-in" Subscription to this pricing model because:

- It represents a good value and we want to be fair and compare "apples to apples".
- In Autodesk's rental model, AutoCAD is effectively under subscription as long as you keep paying for it.
- The AutoCAD prices quoted here include Autodesk Subscription with Basic Support.
- BricsCAD's "All-in" subscription includes 24-hour Priority email support. Autodesk offers "Advanced Support" at an additional cost for AutoCAD-only rental programs, but that price is not included in the AutoCAD rental costs shown here.

2. After 31 January 2016, Autodesk, Inc. will no longer sell perpetual licenses of AutoCAD®.

3. BricsCAD "All-in" includes:

- Priority Support
- Update to the next major release
- Free copy of "Customizing BricsCAD" by Ralph Grabowski
- The flexibility to leave subscription, keep using BricsCAD and upgrade it later!

4. "All-in" Subscription is recommended, but not required.

5. Note: If you stop paying rental fees for Autodesk software, it will simply stop working.

6. BricsCAD Pro costs $650 for a Desktop (perpetual) license. You own the license, and it keeps working even if you choose not to purchase BricsCAD "All-in" Subscription. If you don't purchase "All-in" Subscription, you will still be able to upgrade your licenses to future releases, for a fee.

"Software customers want perpetual, multi-platform licenses. Buy a license of BricsCAD and it's yours forever. Run it on a desktop and a laptop, on Windows, Mac or Linux – it's your choice. You can upgrade your software on your own schedule, and Bricsys offers "All-in" maintenance subscriptions for customers who want the security of upgrades every year."
